

The Unmistakable Impact of Great Project Managers on Hitting Aggressive Deadlines

When one of our corporate clients connected us with their law firm, the amount of work that needed to be completed under very tight timelines – across three countries and five time zones – would have intimidated anyone. At Edox, our response to such pressures is always this: plan well, manage well.

We immediately dedicated a team of project managers across the US to this project, and our lead project managers regularly traveled to Western Europe to assist with depositions.

- We supported 21 depositions per month, on average, over a six-month period, with each deposition requiring preparation binders
- We provided binders so rapidly that the litigation team had ample time to review them prior to the depositions
- We offered nearly 24/7 service hours, which dramatically simplified work across time zones

Under intense pressure, our systematic and thorough approaches, our flexibility and, more than anything, our skilled project managers helped our client stay well ahead of the curve.
